Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

1. Claims 1-20 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable by Kramer (US Patent No. 5,462,427) in view of Heldt (DE Patent No. 29,706,270 U1).

Kramer 427 teaches a rotary tablet press wherein the specification and figure 1 teach the following device comprised of a mould shelf (15) that reads on as a type of rotating die table, an upper guide ring (13) that reads on stamp guide that is a type of reciprocating rod-like device with an upper and lower ram guide (22 and 23) that read on upper and lower stamps which are coaxial to the mold (as seen in figure 1), elastic ram sealing elements capable of rotational symmetry and attachable with their base section to the ram guide ring to form a seal between the ram guide and mould shelf, whereby the sealing element is capable of having base section with an undercut (Col 4 Lines 25-67 and Col 5 Lines 1-20).

Kramer 427 lacks the specific teaching of incorporating a base and sleeve section that forms a scraper lip on the side edge of the reciprocating rod in an abutting manner to form a seal.

In an apparatus pertaining to sealing mechanisms for reciprocating rods, Heldt 270 depicts in figures 1-3 a scraper lip (6') with a scraper surface (13') against the reciprocating rod (12) with a surface structure (17), whereby the use of the scraper is for the removal of particles from the rod when coupled with the cylinder and its advantage allows for the scraper lip structure to prevent leakage of material through the scraping action of particles outward.

It would be obvious to one skilled in the art to modify the apparatus of Kramer 427 with the teachings of Heldt 270, whereby the scraper lip sealing mechanism when coupled to the reciprocating rod is advantage to use do to its ergonomic design and easily attachable and replaceable due to wear and tear without having to replace the apparatus completely.
